Sponsored by the National Center for Advancing Translational Sciences and the NIH Clinical Center

This year's virtual event will feature personal and scientific stories from rare disease patients, researchers and advocates, as well as interactive panel discussions on the following topics:

- Care and research during COVID-19
- Health literacy to elevate the rare diseases community and enhance research
- Advocacy as a driving force in advancing progress in rare diseases research

Other activities include:

- Rare disease stories through TED-style talks
- Virtual posters and exhibits by rare disease groups and others
- Virtual tours of artwork and the NIH Clinical Center
